Rikki smirked. She pulled the towel off and jumped into the ocean. She smiled underwater as she felt the cool water touch her skin. She swan faster and began to go deeper underwater until she felt water begin to push itself into her lungs, she was gasping for air, she felt as if she was drowning. Because she was?

Cleo and Emma sat in Cleo's bedroom and studied for thier upcoming test when they heard a loud startling bang on the door. Cleo's brow raised, then she walked downstairs. Emma followed behind. They opened the door to reveal Rikki, who looked angrier than ever.

'Rikki, what's going on?' Cleo asked.

Rikki sighed and made her way into Cleo's house. 'Come in,' Cleo said, sarcastically. She turned to Emma, who just smiled and shook her head.

Rikki sat in a dark green chair in Cleo's living room. ''Have you guys been..._normal_?'' She asked, hesitantly.

Cleo looked to Emma for explanation. ''What do you mean?'' Emma asked.

Rikki sighed in anger. ''You know, have you guys been able to take showers without falling over?'' She questioned.

Now they understood. They both shook thier heads. ''So, it's only myself then.'' She stated as she moved to the couch.

''Are you sure that your normal again? You could've been dreaming.'' Cleo said. _Always the optimist, _Rikki thought.

Rikki breathed heavily. ''I was awake, Cleo,'' She stated.

Emma crossed her over her chest. ''I think we should all go for a swim then.'' Emma said.

''If your trying to rub this in my face, it's not going to work.'' Rikki said, bitterly. As she sat on the beach side and watched as Emma and Cleo's tails appeared suddenly and normally.

''Rikki, just come in,'' Emma said.

Rikki sighed. ''Do not say that the water is fine.'' Rikki warned.

Rikki dived in and pulled herself back up as she watched nothing happen, once again. She sighed in frustration and climbed out of the ocean and ran away.
